'Extra!' exhibit to be here

BELLE GLADE — A traveling exhibit entitled "Extra! The Men and Machines of American Journalism" will open Mar. 2 at the Lawrence E. Will Museum as part of an outreach program initiated by Secretary of State George Firestone that places 20 museum exhibits on tour statewide.

The exhibit traces the history of American journalism from colonial days to the present, highlighting the people who influenced it and the technology that changed it, Firestone said.

"Extra! Extra!" is one of 20 traveling exhibits placed on statewide tour by the Museum of Florida History at Firestone's request. According to Firestone, the traveling exhibit program is designed to offer Floridians greater access to the state's cultural and historic resources.

The journalism history collection was acquired by Firestone from the Smithsonian Institution Traveling Exhibition Service (SITES) for circulation by the Museum of Florida History.

A SPECIAL COMMENDATION was presented Monday night by Belle Glade Mayor Tom Altman (on right) to Alfonso Merzile during the city commission meeting for saving the life of Arthur Baynes (center).

Belle Glade hires new city manager

By Dean Jones

BELLE GLADE — After almost precisely half a year without a city manager, Belle Glade Mayor Tom Altman said Tuesday the manager of North Bay Village had agreed that morning to fill the similar position here.

North Bay Village (in the Miami Beach area) City Manager Rolfe Wagner agreed to take the job during a Tuesday morning telephone conversation with Altman after he spent Monday looking over the city, going over city reports and meeting the city commissioners and members of the administration.

"I feel as though someone up there were looking out for us," Altman said later, "when blocks were put in the way with the two others." He was referring to attempts to hire Neal Michaelson of Birmingham, Ala. and David L. Greene of Melbourne.

Negotiations between the commissioners and Michaelson broke down over a demand Michaelson made that exceeded the money the commissioners were willing to pay him. Green looked over the city and decided he didn't want to come to Belle Glade.

"I think he's (Wagner) perfect for the job," Altman said Tuesday. "He's an experienced professional. He has a background in small, rural farming communities and he has a national reputation among his peers on city administration."

He said Wagner has authored several papers on city management which he wrote for the International City Manager Association (ICMA). Wagner has been a member of the ICMA, Form of Local Government Committee, a board member of the ICMA McGraw Hill Public Information Network, vice chairman of the Arizona City Management Association of the Arizona City Management Association and Chairman of the Central Arizona

Association of Governments Management Committee.

Altman said Wagner was setting up a meeting with the North Bay Village Council as soon as possible to inform them of his resignation and ask for a release from his commitment to provide 90 days notice before leaving.

Wagner told the commissioners Monday evening he is committed to the 90 days notice but he believes he may be able to come to Belle Glade sooner because of the caliber of people he had hired as administrators there.

He went on to say that even if he can't leave sooner than that, he may be able to work out an arrangement under which he could travel to Belle Glade occasionally in the mean time to help out with problems here.

He pointed out to Commissioner Randy Davidson that he had been appointed city manager of North Bay Village a full month before he was able to leave his position as manager of Coolidge, Arizona.

"I don't mean the he's committed me," he said. "I mean I was the manager of North Bay for a month before I could move and I was making several trips to North Bay while I was still working for Coolidge."

Wagner said he has also served as the city manager of Trenton, Ohio and city administrator of Live Oak and Altamonte Springs. He was born in Merck, Texas.

He said he has combined his liberal arts education at Abilene Christian College and the University of Arkansas with intensive self-education specializing in police sciences, psychology, history, management techniques, computer applications, economics, labor relations and grantsmanship and said he can demonstrate the equivalence of a masters

Rashley criticizes permit approval

Pahokee council opposes home clinics

By Alma Henry

PAHOKEE — On the recommendation of Councilman George Rashley the Pahokee City Council agreed at its regular meeting Tuesday night to have the City's Planning and Zoning Board to look into the possibility of a city ordinance to ban residential homes from being turned into doctors' offices.

Rashley told the Council several doctors have moved into the City of Pahokee turning homes in doctor's offices.

"I think it's wrong and if they moved next door to me I would be up before the Council screaming," said Rashley.

"They drop bus loads of people at those medical centers and leave them," Rashley added.

Phelix Slonaker, building inspector in charge of processing the occupancy license said all of the doctors' offices in the city was in the proper zone except the offices of Dr. Caesar Orduna located at 3127 Bacom Point Rd., and Dr. Jaime Motta located at 3178 Bacom Pt. Rd., the former office of the late Dr. G.B. Walker.

Council chairman William McKinstry asked Slonaker why he issued an occupancy license to Dr. Motta if the zoning was residential and Slonaker answered that for years, Dr. Walker had practiced in the same location and he saw nothing wrong with issuing the occupancy license.

At its next regularly scheduled meeting the Planning and Zoning Board will be looking into the issue.

The Council agreed to delay action again on joining the Florida International Risk Management Association (FIRMA) a protected self-insurance agency for city governments through Gallagher Bassett Insurance Service.

On Jan. 20, William McCreary, an associate with FIRMA appeared along with Scott Stapes, city manager for the city of Lake Park and presented a package to the Council that would double the City's present insurance coverage for the same amount of premium the city is paying to its present insurance carrier, Milton Carpenter, Inc.

On Jan. 27 McCreary appeared before the Council again and at that time the Council told McCreary they wanted to meet with Milton Carpenter before making a decision on the proposal.

On Feb. 10, Milton Carpenter appeared before the Council and said he had not received a copy of the proposed contract and policy from McCreary and could not give the city a detailed analysis on FIRMA's proposal.

At Tuesday night's meeting, Carpenter and Paul Koryna, an associate with Carpenter presented a detailed analysis.

After presentations by Carpenter and McCreary the Council agreed to make a decision on Thursday, Feb. 26.

In other business before the Council:
• Several campers appeared before the Council to address the problem of late night visitors at the Pahokee Harbor destroying personal property and disturbing the peace.

Nick King said he had picked up eleven shells that had been fired off Sunday night from atop of the dike.

Glades General Hospital board, staff, nurses spar

By Dean Jones

BELLE GLADE — The Glades General Hospital Board and the chief of staff found themselves facing a group of obviously concerned nurses, an attorney and a court reporter during Tuesday night's meeting in the wake of an investigation of Emergency Room Nurse Bonnie Peacock.

The investigation came as a result of a statement during the January board meeting in which Dr. Manuel Soto, chief of staff, said Mrs. Peacock had once, when asked her assistance in heart surgery, said she couldn't come to surgery because she was involved in a gunshot wound in the emergency room.

Soto went on to say at the time Mrs. Peacock had offered to telephone another nurse at home to assist Soto but he said that would take too long, that he had his finger in a hole in the patient's heart.

The Jan. 27 statement, one of a series made by Soto during the board meeting was reported in the Jan. 29 Herald-Observer.

Mrs. Peacock, her attorney, Stephen Koons of West Palm Beach, a court reporter and several other nurses, including Supervisor of Nurses Zola Yates, were at the Tuesday night meeting.

Koons said he had mailed a letter to Soto during the past month and Soto had done nothing. He said he intended to keep the contents of both letters confidential and that he hadn't had a chance to read Soto's three-page missive.

"I just want to make a couple of statements to the board," Koons said. He said it was clear that before the article appeared in the Herald-Observer that no dissatisfaction had been expressed by the administration or staff concerning Mrs. Peacock and that a subsequent investigation had uncovered no dissatisfaction.

"My investigation," Miss Yates said at one point, "concluded that Mrs. Peacock didn't refuse to get help. She said she did. She was not in violation of her duties."

Soto said he hadn't said Mrs. Peacock had been in violation of her duties or that she had refused to provide help. He said it was interesting that Miss Yates was quoting the newspaper article and not him.

Mrs. Yates said she wasn't quoting the newspaper, that she was quoting Mrs. Peacock.

Soto reiterated his statement that he didn't say Mrs. Peacock had refused to help and went on to say that when she had offered to send for help he hadn't refused that help. He said the help was too far away to do any good.

He said he wasn't blaming Mrs. Peacock for the lack of help and he wasn't blaming the board for the lack of help.

"It sounds to me like you're putting the blame on the hospital," Board member Lee Berryhill said.

"I'm not blaming anybody," Soto said. "The ultimate responsibility for providing help is the board's. Please, leave Mrs. Peacock out of this. We have known her a long time and no one is blaming her. It is up to me to point out we needed more help. It is up to you to decide what to do."

Berryhill said he understood the emergency room was full at the time and stressed he also understood that help had been offered. Soto agreed but said the help was too far away.

Dr. Ahmed Barhoush said at one point that Dr. Soto, when making the original statement during the January meeting, was speaking for the entire medical staff. He went on to say Mrs. Peacock was recognized as a good nurse by the staff and that Dr. Soto hadn't been expressing a problem with Mrs. Peacock but had been trying to make the point more nurses were

Black Gold Jubilee and Stella Taylor swim plans firming up for April

BELLE GLADE — With only seven weeks remaining before the final week-end of the 1981 Black Gold Jubilee, the Jubilee Committee is expected to finalize plans for the city to play host to Stella Taylor's swim across Lake Okechobee and pin down final details for the rest of the celebration.

Chairman Steve Weeks told the committee that $47,000 of the $2,000 needed by Miss Taylor to swim the lake has already been raised and Finance Subcommittee Chairman Larry Tucker said the remaining $300 should be no problem to raise.

Weeks appointed a subcommittee of three, chaired by Pete Kirshman and filled out by W.C. Taylor Jr. and Alice Mixson, to coordinate the former nun's swim. Miss Taylor is tentatively scheduled to end her swim between 1 and 2 p.m. Sunday, April 12 at the Municipal Marina.

"I'm very excited about it," Miss Taylor said of the swim during a telephone interview. "This swim is very dangerous but I think it'll mean a lot to the city. It should bring a lot of good publicity."

Miss Taylor, who captured national attention when she attempted to swim from the Bahamas to West Palm Beach, has swum the English Channel twice and broken a record when she spent 45 hours swimming 45 miles in Lake George, New York in frigid water.

She said she anticipates spending 29 hours in the water in her swim of Lake Okechobee. She spent a total of 102 hours in ocean water in 1974 with 51 and 21 of those hours on two respective swims from the Bahamas.

"At least there won't be any jellyfish," she said of the lake crossing.

Miss Taylor lives in Fort Lauderdale now. She said she has circumnavigated the city twice as part of her training, using the Intracoastal Waterway and the Atlantic for the long runs. She spends much of her time at the Swimming Hall of Fame in Fort Lauderdale.

WHAT HAS RISEN FASTER THAN THE RATE OF INFLATION? Taxes have jumped four and a half times faster than prices in the past 20 years, according to the Tax Foundation. Tax index has risen to 336.4 from 61.9 since 1960. Price index to 209.4. Productivity index rose to only 144.

Q. How much are we paying for household energy?

A. Probably less than you think — particularly compared to other budget items. The clock illustrates the length of time per day the average taxpayer worked in order to meet some typical 1980 living costs.

It takes almost three hours to cover the total tax bill, while a mere nine minutes worth of work a day will pay the "high cost" of electric and gas service.

Marina rate request denied

BELLE GLADE — A request by campers at the Belle Glade Municipal Marina campground to abolish or make smaller a camping rate increase at the marina was denied Monday night by the city commission.

Mayor Tom Altman said he had been approached by campers who presented him with a petition to at least cut the rate increase in half in the old section of the marina.

He said the campers also told him the city was losing business because of the increase to $7.50 a night as campers have been leaving for other area campsites where the rates aren't so high and that the city will be losing even more money as the other campers move out and no new ones move in.

Altman said he had checked at other campsites, however, and while Okie-Tantee is charging the same, one in Clewiston is charging $10 a night and Crooked Hook is charging $10.50.

"We adopted the rates as part of the budget," Commissioner Charles Goodlett said. "I don't believe we can lower them, can we?"

Altman said the only way the rate increase could be abolished would be to transfer funds from other areas into the account.

The commissioners unanimously agreed to go along with the increases, which were held off at campers' request since Oct. 1.

The commissioners also:

Presented a commendation to Alfonso McKenzie of 698½ S.W. Fifth St. for exhibited bravery and concerned citizenship when he saved the life of Arthur Baynes, an 8-year old boy who fell into a canal at the south end of Southwest Fifth Street.

"Mr. McKenzie's action," said Police Chief D. Bill Mathis in a letter asking for the commendation, "surely saved the life of Arthur Baynes and it is the recommendation of the Belle Glade Police Department that Mr. McKenzie receive a special recognition from the city commission."

degree in public administration, political science and business administration.

Wagner told the commissioners he doesn't see himself as a politician, that he see himself as an administrator, "and I don't work for the citizens. I work for you five commissioners. You work for the people."

He said if he has a talent or skill, it's to manage a team of employees by giving them his view of what the city's goals should be and instilling a belief in that goal in the employees.

"I have a reputation of surrounding myself with people of excellence," he said, "with esprit de corps. I don't know if that's a skill or a talent but I'm not afraid to hire people better than I am, I seek them out."

"I come on as a hard-minded S.O.B. but instinctively, I'm a team manager," he said.

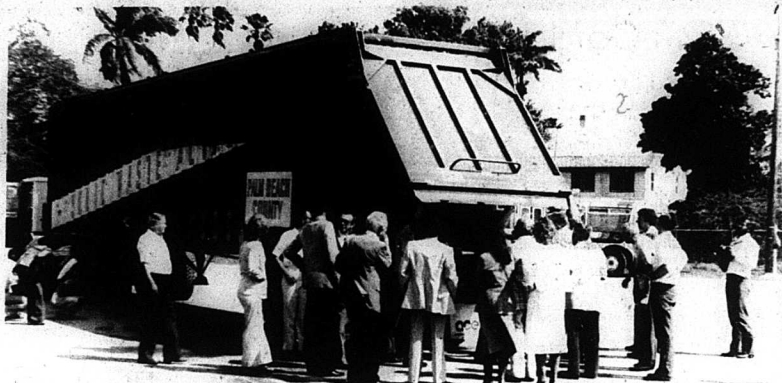

Wagner also said he has a reputation as grantsman, when told about the recent rejections of a Community Development Block Grant by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development and the possibility of the loss of the Community Development program.

"I've been turned down grants the first time around," he said. "I've been turned down the second time and the third time but I define 'grantsman' as making myself so obnoxious the people at HUD would give me a grant just to get me out of their hair."

Wagner said he had read the city charter's provisions on the city manager and said, when asked by Commissioner Charles Goodlett, he would have no problems with it.

"There's only one thing that impresses me more than the technical language of your form of government and that's your dedication to that form of government," he said. "If you're sincere...if you're not kidding me, that's the most exciting form of government I can imagine working under."

He told the commissioners that he would give them a quick answer if a firm offer was made. He lived up to his promise the next morning when Altman called him and made the offer and he accepted on the spot.

A GROUP OF SANITATION WORKERS gathered in Belle Glade Thursday and Friday to inspect the Solid Waste Authority's transfer station operation and the Ace Shuttlevans (above) which will be used to haul garbage and trash out of the Glades.

Sanitation workers convene in Belle Glade

BELLE GLADE — The city hosted its first statewide convention Thursday and Friday last week when the Governmental Refuse Collection and Disposal Association held its winter seminar in the city.

A total of 65 garbage and trash collection and disposal officials from all over the state and from as far away as North Carolina and Virginia gathered in town with the express idea of inspecting the three tractor-trailers to be used in conjunction with a transfer station at what is now the City Landfill.

Palm Beach County Solid Waste Authority Executive Director Tim Hunt said he was responsible for the visit, which began with a dinner at the Holiday Inn Thursday night, continued with a session of talks on Friday morning and wound up Friday afternoon when the officials inspected the trucks and the transfer station, where construction is being held up because of cracked walls and pilings.

Hunt said the trucks, models called the Ace Shuttlevans, offer two primary differences from the normal packer-trucks in that there is relatively little hydraulics involved, dropping the price by about half and that the loading time is about three minutes compared to the normal 20-30 minutes for packers.

Silver polish is said to take crayon marks off linoleum or vinyl tile.

How I See It

by Alma Henry

What better way to start out this week's column than correcting all the mistakes that were made in last week's column. I'm not sure if my fault or the typesetters but anyway you look at it last week we called Charla Sizemore-Charles Sizemore. Believe me Charla, I am sorry about the mix-up.

The Association for Retarded Citizens-Glades Area Board of directors were all raving at the monthly board meeting about all the good comments that each had received as a result of a special Valentine's Day project the Board of directors undertook.

One board member whose eyes are as keen as any would have been said right off Alma I enjoyed the article but I noticed we now have a Charles instead of Charla.

To dig me from out of this one Charla kindly said it was alright she was called Charles by all her friends in school.

But to make amends I promised Charles, Charla I would spell it right this week. Ok typesetters here goes: Carol, Carlo, Carl, Charlie, Charles Charles, CHARLA CHARLA.

Thanks to another good friend of mine on the Pahokee side of Lake Okechobee I might appear on That's Incredible. Several weeks ago I thought I encouraged Black youth to be AWARE of their roots instead it came out BEWARE of your roots.

Now that I have that out, I made an attempt to correct a percentage of my mistakes for the past couple of weeks here goes the mistakes for this week.

ANITA ADAMS SHORT STUFF

It seems to me that I am constantly predestined for failure. You may think that a rather pessimistic attitude to take, but things certainly seem to turn out that way.

For example, I water ski with Sunshine Water Sports LTD, and I am one of the climbers they have on their two tier pyramid. Now, when you fall off the top, you are supposed to fall backwards so that you don't get ran over by the four guys under you wearing wooden skis. No, not me. I always fall forwards and get ran right over.

I am totally convinced I was not meant for any hazardous duties. Such was the feeling I had when my boss told me they were sending me to work in our Jupiter office a few weeks. Being in my usual or unusual state of mind, despite my lack of a sense of direction, I started off.

I drove through Pahokee and Port Mayaca just like my directions told me to do and felt satisfied that I was well on my way to Jupiter, a place I had never been before, yet alone I had to drive to.

"Okay, directions say 710. Fine I'll turn here."

I drove on up the road a piece, decided I had just taken a wrong turn and everything would be alright when I got back to the main highway.

"Okay, I turned right last time, I'll turn left this time." Simple deduction, right? Wrong again. I trudged on down the highway passing a gas station, I thought, well there is one sign of life, I must be on the right track this time. Turned on the radio again, satisfied that I was going to be on my estimated time of arrival.

"Okay, 76, turn this way." I said to myself. I bolted on down the highway. Saw a few trees, then nothing. That is when I panicked again. I pulled off the road turned around and headed back into the direction whence I had come. I thought, "This time I am going to stop and ask for directions at the gas station I passed."

The station was closed.

I couldn't believe I was having such bad luck! I decided to call the office and find out what I was doing wrong. I glanced at my watch again. I was late.

"Hello. This is Anita. I have driven all over the countryside and have not seen one sign that says this way to Jupiter."

"Where are you?" asked Scott.

"I am in a phone booth at a gas station."

"Why don't you ask someone there for directions?" he asked.

The station is closed, Scott. I replied about to burst into tears.

By now I was really, angry. Angry because they had sent me on this silly excursion and angry at myself for being so dumb! I decided I would make another telephone call.

"Hello Brenda?" I said.

"Is that you Anita?"

"Yes, I am still, among the living. Brenda, I bet I could tell you every vacant lot this side of Pahokee." I said sadly.

"Why don't you call the Jupiter office. I'm sure they could tell you how to get there better than I could." came the reply I received.

Brenda. She was always there to help and make me feel better about myself. So I called the Jupiter office and got sufficient directions and arrived in Jupiter only three hours late.

Bureaucrats 2, City Zero

In a game that probably hasn't been noticed by all that many local residents, Belle Glade, and the people who live there, are on the short end of a 2-0 score with the federal bureaucrats.

The first of the two most recent scores were made when the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) rattled their plumbing when the city wasn't moving fast enough to suit them on the 201 Waste Water Disposal Plan. Under which the city is expected to make about $8 million worth of improvements and expansion to the city's sewer collection and disposal system.

It took a trip by city officials to Atlanta to convince the federal paper shufflers the city wasn't the bete noir in that case, if for no other reason, because the county was the lead agent for the planning phase.

Then somebody, apparently the engineering firms responsible for drawing up the 201 Plan, added insult to injury by including a provision that a proposed deep injection well, which is to be paid for by the city, will be owned and operated by the county.

No one seems to know where that came from except from out in left field. The deep well, or whatever other system of disposing of sewage effluent is adopted, was for four years in the planning stage, proposed to be owned and operated by whoever had to pay for it and, in this case, that was to have been the city.

The second homer slugged out by the visiting team was scored by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) Jacksonville team, who rejected the city's application for a $3 million Community Development Block Grant to be used over the next three years to continue a project in helping those who can't afford it to rehabilitate their homes, as well as provide better housing.

Of Real People

It's getting warm enough to go sun-bathing again, so Laura and I decided to refurbish our dimmed suntans on a Gold Coast beach last weekend.

Now, we've been to beaches all up and down the east coast of Florida, from Jacksonville to Key West. I don't know if we have a favorite beach or not. Daytona Beach, with its hard sand that goes on forever is a good candidate. You are allowed to drive your vehicle right onto the beach at Daytona, and the two times I've been there I've seen three or four fools get stuck when they got too close to the waterline.

But I didn't have the time or the money to go to Daytona this weekend (even though the Daytona 500 was running), so we picked a closer locale—Pt. Lauderdale.

Sometimes we like to go to a beach with some relative solitude, like in Jupiter. But last weekend we wanted to mix and mingle with the people, and as you may be aware, there are plenty of people during the season on Ft. Lauderdale Beach.

Parking and traffic at Lah-de-dah was bad, as usual, but we left early enough to handle that without losing much sun-time. (Laura says the best hours to catch a good tan are between 10:30 a.m. and 2:30 p.m.)

The diversions on a heavily-used, young age group beach like Ft. Lauderdale are apparent—the skimper and racier swimsuits and the continuously circulating airplanes with their bar and dance-hall advertisements are just two of them. You never see those airplanes and their banners on less-used beaches like Jupiter or Delray.

We also took in the world-famous (or so the promoters say) Tinnie-Weenie Bikini Contest, held every weekend at the Candy Store bar. Real People filmed the contest about two other public services for them.

Grant applications are rejected every day by the federal government and it's likely the number of grants available to cities will be drastically reduced during the next four years but the interesting thing about this rejection is the reasoning behind it.

The city only managed to score 171 points of a possible 400 in one of four categories used to score the application and the odd thing is that that category was the one in which Belle Glade has for the past five years led every other city in its size classification in the state.

So members of the city commission are going to mount up and take another trip on Mar. 10 in an effort to find why the application was rejected, even though it doesn't appear likely they'll be able to overturn the rejection.

Everybody can't be a winner and there are bound to be setbacks through life but what's wrong with both of the battles mentioned here is that the ground rules have remained about as stable as quick sand and the only consistent aspect about the way the game has been played has been the inconsistency.

It's something like a dealer declaring in the middle of a game of five card stud that one-eyed jacks are wild but only if they're held by the dealer.

29th flavor?

Members of the Palm Beach County Sheriff's Office showed a marked lack of interest in promoting free trade recently when a 16-year old Clewiston youth was arrested in Belle Glade for peddling marijuana from an ice cream truck but Howard Johnson's might prove interested in the new flavor yet.

weeks ago, some of the beach-bums said. So the whole country may soon be able to gawk at this revealing event.

Several girls parade around the bar's pool, the winner being the gal who garnered the most applause from the standing room-only audience. With Laura sitting right beside me, I was hesitant to clap too much.

I offered to buy her a teenie-weenie bikini of her very own, but I still don't think she would've entered the contest.

DEAN JONES CRACKER CRUMBS

Had a message come in this week "From the Teacher's Desk", as it were that finally told me why I'm about as slick as Number 0000 sandpaper when it comes to mathematics.

What I've got is your common everyday garden-variety mathophobia.

According to the experts at the FTP-NEA, the union that claims to represent more teachers than anyone else in Florida, it never was my fault I had trouble with anything more advanced than adding three and two and why there was a total breakdown when I enrolled in an algebra course.

It was my parents' fault...and yes, I got along fine with my hobby-horse, Sig Fred. (With all my other complexes, I figure I can get away with using the diminutive for Sigmund Freud.)

Anyway, John Myrick, president of the FTP-NEA, said many children enter school with a bias about math. The bias, he said, is partially established by parental attitudes because the parents had a tough time with math themselves.

Seems that when a person's parents did well in math, they'll probably do well. If the parents had a tough time, though, you might as well hang it up once you get past long division and it'll be a struggle to learn the times table.

That's just as well because I never did figure 'em out except for the twosies, fives and tens. Who cares that seven-fifths six is 39 anyway?

I was one of those children Myrick said views math as a difficult subject before I ever entered the classroom. Knowing that doesn't really make math any easier but at least I know I was blameless.

For shame, Mal Now, I know why I wasn't cut out to be an engineer. That's all right though. I never wanted to drive those trains anyway.

Myrick did offer some tips on how to make a kid learn math better though. Things like putting the preschooler's counting ability to work by having him or her count out things like dinner napkins, forks or pieces of cake.

That never worked out too well for me though. By the time I was in junior high school, I was so math-phobic that I did all right on forks and knives and spoons (the times table only five of us in the family) but I was a junior or senior before she tumbled to why, by the time everyone sat down, there were only three or four pieces of cake when she knew she'd cut five slices.

I saw Mama was slow in math too. Besides, I had that angelic kind of face that wouldn't let anyone think I'd do something wrong...even when it was smothered with chocolate icing.

It's only in the movies that all the thieves look like thieves.

Myrick went ahead with some other good suggestions too though; things like encouraging your kid to play games like bingo, dominoes, and encouraging the little curtain climber to calculate age, weight and height.

That way, see, if the kid gets really good at all those calculations, he can get a job with the carnival and carnies make notoriously good skills.

He left out one pastime, like a friend of mine did. He encouraged his six-year old to get out on the sidewalks and do some other types of calculations involving a couple of little white cubes decorated with little black pips.

Told him if he didn't pick up on some long green, he'd better not come home. He made it easier though. Loaded or shaved the dice so that crap games always seem to come out in little Freddy's favor.

By the time he'd mastered the apple art of palming off the good dice for the loaded ones, he'd also graduated from playing for his classmates' lunch money to going for the teachers' earnings.

He played a mean hand of poker too. Wiped out the principals, the dean of boys and three physics coaches his first day in high school. By the time they came out of the boiler room, they were feeling lucky he let 'em keep their shirts.

He was lucky, on the other hand, they didn't do any more than expel him from high school for the rest of his natural life.

It didn't matter anyway because by that time, Freddy could teach the math teachers about how to count cards and make odds. Why mess around with high school in Jacksonville when Las Vegas and the strip were beckoning?

He only had one really weird habit. I'm the same as a lot of people when I say I like my steak rare. Freddy wasn't like that though. He started out telling his mother to run the cow by the stove and then slice off a hunk. If it moored when he cut off a mouthful, it was all right by him.

We called him Weird Freddy but I understand he picked up a new name out in Vegas. You've heard of Jimmy the Greek? Well, he's called Freddy the Geek. But he sure knows math.

SCOUTING

History of the Boy Scouts

A GOOD TURN TO AN AMERICAN. One day in the year 1909 the great city of London was in the grip of a dense fog. An American businessman, William D. Boyce, stopped under a street lamp to locate himself. Out of the gloom a boy approached him and asked if he could be of help. "You certainly can," said Boyce. He told the boy that he wanted to find a certain business office in the center of the city.

"I'll take you there," said the boy.

When they got to their destination, the American reached into his pocket for a tip. But the boy stopped him.

"No thank you, sir. I am a Scout. I can't take anything for helping."

"A Scout? And what might that be?" asked Boyce.

And so the boy told the American about himself and his brother Scouts. Boyce became very interested. After finishing his errand, he had the boy take him to the British Scout office. There the boy disappeared.

At the office Boyce met Baden-Powell, the famous British general who had founded the Scouting movement. Boyce was so impressed with what he learned that he decided to bring Scouting home with him.

And so, on February 8, 1910, in Washington D.C., Boyce and a group of outstanding men founded the Boy Scouts of America. Ever since then this day has been known as the birthday of Scouting in the United States.

What happened to the boy? No one knows. He was never heard of again, but he will never be forgotten. In the British Scout Training Center at Gilwell Park, England, a statue of a buffalo was put up in honor of this "Unknown Scout". His Good Turn had brought the Scouting movement to our country.

ONE Good Turn to ONE man became a Good Turn to millions of American boys. Such is the power of a Good Turn. You never can tell....

THE FOUNDER OF SCOUTING The man who founded the Scouting movement, Robert Baden-Powell, had had a great military career. He got his early training in India. He then saw service in Africa. At the turn of the century he was an officer in the war between Britain and the descendants of Dutch settlers, the Boers, in South Africa. Here he gained world fame by holding a key town, Mafeking, for 217 days against a big enemy force. He stood fast until another army group broke through the Boer lines and relieved him and his men.

Baden-Powell came home to England as the greatest hero of the Boer War. He decided to make use of his fame to help British boys become better men.

He slowly developed his ideas. He based them on his own experiences as a boy in England and a soldier in India and Africa. He then tested them with a group of boys. He held the world's first Boy Scout camp on the English island of Brownsea, in 1907. Out of this testing came a book he called "Scouting for Boys". It was an instant best seller. Boys by the thousands bought it and decided to become Scouts. Within a few weeks Scouting spread like wildfire throughout England and soon afterward around the world.

Scouting guides a boy onto the path of becoming a self-reliant and compassionate adult. We're proud of our Scouts and heartily salute this super organization!

Fishing is getting better!

Who said that the weather had finally gotten right for fishing? Well, at least it's not freezing. In spite of the high winds and heavy seas on the "Big O", some fishermen did bring in some nice catches of bass and speckled perch.

The Lake Okeechobee Bassmasters of Belle Glades fished their monthly tournament Sunday, Feb. 15. Jimmy McMillan of Belle Glades took top honors with a limit of fish weighing 22 pounds. Buster (on-a-roll) McMillan took second with a total of seven pounds. Third place went to David Sullivan of Pahokee with 6'8".

Bass can be found in the peppergrass beds and reeds close in to the shoreline. Pelican Bay and marker 92 are the spots to fish spoons, spinner baits and worms. Shiners are producing a few lunker bass. With the full moon, the female bass are going on the beds.

Speckled perch fishing is fair to good with a few very good catches being brought in on minnows and jigs. Red/yellow and solid green jigs are the most popular. Night fishing is producing the larger stringers but some good daytime catches are being brought in. Most of the specks are being caught in the Rm Canal south of Slim's Fish Camp in about 3 to 7 feet of water.

I had a local fisherman in from fishing, who had a pretty good story to tell. He claims that he was fishing a spoon up in Pelican Bay and as he worked it over the top of the peppergrass, the water exploded around the spoon. He missed the strike and eased his boat on down the shoreline. Deciding to make another pass over the same area, he approached the spot where he missed that big fish. He was amazed when he noticed that the water had still not filled up the hole where the strike had occurred. The water was still swirling around the hole. Now, that's what I call a "big fish" tale.

Anyway, I have to leave you now till next week. I have a date with a big fish up in Pelican Bay. Good fishing, Buddy Norris.

Johnson in wrestling nationals

BELLE GLADE — Former Glades Central High School wrestling team member Obie Johnson Jr. will represent Winston-Salem University next week when he participates in the national championship matches at Central Oklahoma University.

Johnson, son of Obie Johnson Sr. of 425 S.W. Ave. D, won the conference and NAIA regional championship titles Saturday when he defeated Barry Dean, 5-2, from Pembroke College. He said he placed second last year when he lost to All-American Greg Sheamly, also of Pembroke.

Johnson has been wrestling in the Central Intercollegiate Athletic Association in the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics for two years.

He capped his wrestling career at Glades Central in 1979 when he went to the state tournament and lost in the first round. He wrestled then in the 185 pound division.

Shelton is honored

BELLE GLADE — Glades Day School senior Jason Shelton was recently named one of America's Outstanding Names and Faces according to an announcement by the publication of the same name.

The selection, the announcement said, identifies Shelton as "a member of a prestigious group comprised of less than 1 per cent of all students nationwide."

"Recognition in our publication is a national distinction bestowed exclusively upon those students who have satisfied select criteria of excellence in academics, athletics, extracurricular activities or community service," the letter from Editor R. Hyatt Faulk read. "These outstanding endeavors have earned these students the prominence in school and civic affairs which merit this award."

Ladies breeze through playoffs

Raiders could make state

BY DEAN JONES

BELLE GLADE — The Glades Central girls basketball team will be hosting Pompano Beach Eazy at 8 p.m. Saturday in the Raider gym after romping through the District 14AAA and Regional 7AAA playoffs with little opposition from North Shore and Westwood.

A win against Pompano Beach would catapult the Lady Raiders into the state tournament next week in Winter Park for the second consecutive year. The state tournament will be played Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

The girls' most recent win, the Region 7AAA 74-42 whipping administered Tuesday night to Westwood gave Glades Central a 22-1 record for the season, which is one more loss than they carried into the state tournament last year. Only one point separated the girls last year from a perfect season and the state championship.

"We played pretty well (Tuesday)," Coach Mike Logsdon said. "Full court pressure and defense all the time; that's what did it. We started in the first quarter when we outscored them, 20-7."

"They just weren't ready for us," Logsdon said, "and we were pretty high right from the start. We got three or four steals right off and we ran from there. We outscored them, 20-8 in the fourth quarter to wind it up but they kept pretty close in the second and third quarters."

Linda Joyce Burroughs once again led the Lady Raiders scoring with 26 points, 14 steals, 12 assists and three rebounds. Mary West followed closely with 18 points and led the defense with five steals, two assists, 15 rebounds and four blocked shots.

They were followed by Denise Bussie with eight points, seven steals and two assists; Jessica Hansford with seven points, one assist and one steal.

seven rebounds; Dianne Bussie with six points, three steals and four rebounds; Gloria Stewart with three points and three rebounds; Karen Gooden with two points and seven rebounds; Cassandra Strachan with two points and one assist; and Annette Miller with two points and two rebounds.

In the District 14AAA playoff, the girls took the championship with a score of 68-30.

"It was the same story," Logsdon said. "We outscored them, 19-3 in the first quarter with a press and kept up our defense all the way. It was pretty much of a blowout all the way."

"It really surprised us," he went on, "because the last time we played them, we only got them by 12."

Burroughs again led the scoring with 18 points, 12 steals, 14 assists and two rebounds. Three other players scored in double digits, led by West with 14 points, two steals, one assist and 17 rebounds and five blocked shots; Jessica Hansford with 12 points, two steals, one assist and 13 rebounds; and Denise Bussie with 12 points, seven steals and two assists.

Dianne Bussie scored nine points, one steal and 14 rebounds, followed by Karen Gooden with two points and three rebounds.

Gator boys win, girls lose

The girls lost in the first round of their District last week, but the Glades Day boys basketball team finished their regular season with two consecutive wins.

The guys downed St. Edwards in an away match, 59-34 Thursday, and beat Naples at home Saturday, 68-58. Glades Day won both matches handily, staying in the lead throughout.

Coming off the two victories, Coach Schmidt said he thought his team was ready for its District Tournament, which begins Thursday night at Glades Day's gym.

"Hopefully, we're ready to go," said Schmidt, whose team is seeded second with a 15-8 overall record and a 11-4 district slate.

Glades Day opens the tourney Thursday at 8:30 p.m. against Indian River, whom it has beaten twice this season.

Seeded first is Benjamin, who has downed the Gators twice this year. Seeded third is Moore Haven (Glades day has split with it) and fourth is Christian Day.

Benjamin plays St. Edwards at 4 p.m. Thursday; Moore Haven plays the winner of a Palm Vista-Palm Beach Prep Wednesday match at 5:30; and Christian Day faces Jupiter Christian at 7.

Leading scorer versus St. Edwards was Tom Swager, who netted 16. Following were Scott Meredith and Greg Chancey with 10 apiece; Tom Wilson, 9; Richard Schiele and Jason Shelton with 6 apiece; and Oscar Toledo, 2. Swager and Schiele led in rebounds with 13 each.

Against Naples Christian, Swager netted a season-high 32 points, the most in his career. Following were Dan Ross, 11; Chancey, 9; Schiele and Meredith, 7 each; and Shelton, 2. Leading rebounder was Swager, with 15.

The girls lost to Moore Haven last week, 42-26, in the first round of their District. Leading scorer was Tammy Scruggs, with 10.

This loss put the girls' final season record at 5-9. Most of his squad coming back next year, Coach Byron Walker said he thinks his team should improve greatly.

building tomorrow today

These ambitious young Future Farmers of America are building their skills to help make our world a better place in which to live! We are proud to support them in their work!

The FFA Creed

I believe in the future of farming, with a faith born not of words but of deeds - achievements won by the present and past generations of agriculturists; in the promise of better days through better ways, even as the better things we now enjoy have come to us from the struggles of former years.

I believe that to live and work on a good farm, or to be engaged in other agricultural pursuit, is pleasant as well as challenging; for I know the joys and discomforts of agricultural life and hold an inborn fondness for those associations which, even in hours of discouragement, I cannot deny.

I believe in leadership from ourselves and respect from others. I believe in my own ability to work efficiently and think clearly, with such knowledge and skill as I can secure, and in the ability of progressive agriculturists to serve our own and the public interest in producing and marketing the product of our toil.

I believe in less dependence on begging and more power in bargaining; in the life abundant and enough wealth to help make it so - for others as well as myself; in less need for charity and more of it when needed; in being happy myself and playing square with those whose happiness depends upon me.

I believe that rural America can and will hold to the best traditions of our national life and that I can exert an influence in my home and community which will stand solid for my part in that inspiring task.

The Creed was written by E.M. Tiffany, and adopted at the 3rd National Convention of the FFA. Revised at the 38th Convention.

Sewer rate hike may be delayed

By Dean Jones
BELLE GLADE — Delays in the implementation of Belle Glade's 201 Waste-water Treatment Plan is expected to hold down the amount of water and sewer rate increases this year.

During the financing of what was expected to be an $8.1 million bond issue this year to pay for improvements and expansion to the city's water and sewer treatment and collection system, the commissioners had already agreed to go ahead with a 56 per cent water and sewer rate increase on May 1 rather than split the rate hike into increases in both May and October.

According to the projected rate increase schedule, further increases of 10 per cent and 5 per cent were expected on Oct. 1, 1982 and Oct. 1, 1983. The commissioners learned, however, that the city isn't as far along as had thought on the development of 201 Plans, under which the city was to have furnished an estimated $2.3 million and the federal government was to have furnished $6.9 million for the construction of more sewer collection and treatment facilities.

That construction has been mandated by the Palm Beach County Health Department and the commissioners thought earlier this year they were ready for Phase II, the design phase of the plan.

That impression was dispelled in a meeting two weeks ago with Environmental Protection Agency officials in Atlanta. Mayor Tom Altman and Public Works Director Ron Sigmon told the other commissioners they were under the impression that no two officials at EPA regional headquarters could agree on just where the city stands and where it is supposed to go from here.

An engineer representing Briley, Wild and Associates Engineers, the city's consultant engineers, estimated it would take 1.5 to 2 years before construction of the 201 Plan projects could begin. Under those circumstances, Jim Seneff, another engineer with Briley, Wild, suggested the city would do better to wait until a later date to set up financing of the project, rather than finance it through the bond issue being floated for water facility expansion and improvements.

Seneff said the city could safely drop almost all the $2.3 million earmarked for sewer work from the bond issue. Financial consultants Loomis Leedy and William Fray said they would have to rework the figures on the bond issue.

Seneff said he doesn't believe it would be hard to split off the sewer figures from the water figures in the bond issue financing because he's kept the two separated as much as possible throughout the months he's been working on the project.

What this will apparently mean to the users of the Belle Glade water and sewer service is that they'll be paying 65 per cent more for their water after May 1 but no more for sewer. Under the original plan, they would be paying 56 per cent more for a combination of both services after May 1.

For residents using less than the minimum chargeable amount of 2,000 gallons of water per month, who now pay $3.85 for water and $6.95 for sewer, they will pay approximately $6.35 for water and $6.95 for sewer after May 1.

Had the decision not been made to split off the sewer improvements, they could have expected to pay $10.45 for sewer. Charges for more than 2,000 gallons a month would have increased from 85 cents per 1,000 gallons for water and 90 cents for sewer to $1.40 for water and $1.35 for sewer.

The commissioners instructed Seneff to make the changes in his calculations and pass the information directly on to Leedy and Associates in Orlando, who would then construct a new formula for a bond issue.

Seneff said he expected to be able to work up his part of the figures next week.

In the meantime, the commission will attempt to set up a meeting with Sugar Cane Growers Cooperative in an attempt to work out two changes to the existing large water user contract with the Glades Sugar Mill.

The sugar mill and Quaker Oats combine to form the largest single user of Belle Glade water, often using more than half the amount treated by the city plant.

The two goals of the meeting with the Cooperative, Mayor Tom Altman said, are to extend the life of the agreement and to increase the amount of the guaranteed minimum payments by the Cooperative.

Altman said the existing contract life is about five to six years and the guaranteed payments are about $93 per month. The reason for the two changes, he said, is to make the bonds more marketable.

In 1979 the blood bank had 30,000 donors and 40,000 in 1980.

Mrs. Chapman and Mr. Herb Johnson, two donor recruiters from the Palm Beach Blood Bank were in Belle Glade last week to promote interest in the blood drive with hopes of bringing the blood mobile into the Glades areas more often.

"Once a month or once every two months," said Mrs. Chapman. "If there is enough interest."

Parents, students and counselor work together

Student Service Week

PAHOKEE — In conjunction with a proclamation issued by Gov. Bob Graham and the Palm Beach County School Board students at Pahokee Elementary School and students attending Adult Education classes at the school observed Student Service Week Feb. 9 through 13.

Mrs. Louise H. Rainey, Guidance Counselor at the school coordinated the activities.

Mrs. Rainey said the program was carried out in two phases. The first phases consisted of a program with parents and students working together in the evening on academic subject and disciplinary problems.

Mrs. Rainey said she chose that area to stress because "first there are many children with problems and there is the concurrent need to develop resources to deal with the problems."

"There is perhaps more important the need for all mental health groups to focus on prevention rather than remediation," she added.

Mrs. Rainey said studies have shown that intervention with parents can lead to significant change in children when the parent's behavior change.

"When desired behaviors receive reinforcement from the parent and undesirable behaviors are ignored or punished, the child's behavior changes in the desired direction," said Mrs. Rainey.

Several parent-child teams participated in the program and Mrs. Rainey said the class is continuing on Monday and Tuesday nights and is open to adults who would like to improve their academic and disciplinary skills.

From kindergarten through the fourth grade during Student Service Week Mrs. Rainey presented several in-class teaching sessions encouraging students to accept and appreciate their own individuality as well as the differences in others.

One of the staff said through Mrs. Rainey's guidance service the students received a warm inspiring lesson that gave the students a strong sense of personal adequacy and self-acceptance.

Working with the more mature fourth graders Mrs. Rainey focused on helping them to understand and value their individual uniqueness, interpersonal relationships; the connection between ideas, feeling, beliefs, and behavior; accurate and appropriate expression of feelings; personal competence and accomplishments.

Mrs. Rainey also presented the students with common sense guidelines to improving study habits; showed the students how to participate more effectively in the classroom both through oral and written communication and helped them develop sound listening skills.

Mrs. Rainey said working with the school resource personnel; school psychologist, school nurse, special education human relations counselors and the most important key "the parent" helped make the Student Service Week and her daily task very interesting and enjoyable.

TAKING IT FROM THE TOP

By REV. DAVID T. EVANS
Everglades Presbyterian Church

This is the third article in a series on the pastor and the local church. This week we will consider the relation of the pastor and the local church officers and also discuss the church judiciary.

The officers of a local church, whether they are called elders, deacons or stewards, are important in the life of the church. The officers must be willing to give adequate time and openness to the pastor. The officers can speak to the congregation about matters which the pastor would find difficult. The lay leaders can be cheer leaders for the program of the church.

If the officers are willing to approve anything without commitment, the congregation is not going to move ahead. Lloyd Ogilvie, pastor of the Hollywood Presbyterian Church, said that "the local church will progress only as fast as the session (officers) are willing to progress." The local official group must be willing to encourage the pastor as well as criticize their leader. The pastor does vitally need support and concern. Sometimes the officers need to say take some time off. Some pastors feel that they are not entitled to sit and read or rest except late at night or on a designated day off or if they are out of town.

With support, encouragement and inspiration, the pastor feels that the congregation responds to his devoted, concerned leadership rather than just tolerating him. An appreciated pastor is one who is not looking for another church or hoping that a search committee will come looking in his or her direction.

Another side of the relations within the church system is with the church judiciary. The presbytery, district, diocese, province or other judicatory has responsibility for and in both the church and with the pastor. A local pastor needs the support of the overseer, bishop, district superintendent, or presbytery. More than that the pastor needs a pastor. Some judicatories are using a general pastor.

This person is a pastor to the pastors, having no line authority real or imagined over the pastor. The reason for this is to enable the pastor to bring problems, personal or professional, to the general pastor and feel the problems will not go against his being recommended for a new position. Sometimes only a listening ear is needed, but there are times when personal counseling is needed in the area of family problems or personality conflicts. Only a close relationship can spot the trouble in a pastor's life before divorce or church split occurs or some other crisis happens.

In the next column we will consider the ways which a judicatory executive may be of help to the local pastor and church.
